NEW E. T. PAULL MARCH POPULAR
"Four Horsemen" Based on Theme from Book of Revelation

"The Four Horsemen," E. T. Paull's new descriptive march, has been widely acclaimed as his masterpiece. Based upon the theme as described in the Book of Revelation, the story evolves upon the prophecy vision of St. John the "Four Horsemen," the first riding a white horse indicating "peace, prosperity and happiness." The second rider, with sword in hand, mounted on a red horse, representing the rider of war, with its bloodshed and murder. The third rider, on a black horse signifies depression, sadness and sorrow, while finally a pale horse and rider symbolizing famine, terror, freaky and death, generally known as "Death on a White Horse."

The story is set to music that admirably illustrates and conveys the ideas and characteristics of the four horsemen. It is extremely versatile in nature, ranging from the soft and sweet melody-interpreting joy and happiness—to strong and powerful strains—visualizing war and its horrors.

"The Four Horsemen," published by E. T. Paull Music Co. of New York City, N. Y., gives every promise of being E. T.
Paull's greatest contribution to his popular series of descriptive marches, a number of which have become famous the world over including "Ben Hur Chariot Race," "Burning of Rome" and Napoleon's Last Charge."

BUILDING OUT THE RAT

Eradiation of rats, mice and other "pests" should be included in every program of improved sanitation. They are not only destructive to food and property but are held definitely responsible for the spread of certain fifth disease. The United States Department of Agriculture, in Farmers' Bulletin 896, says:
"It (the rat) carries bubonic plague and many other diseases fatal to man, and has been responsible for more untimely deaths among human beings than all the wars of history."

A single surviving pair of rats breeding under favorable conditions, will increase to over 350,000,000 individuals in three years.

The cost of rat-proofing is small compared with the saving effected, and often the details of construction in a new building can be so arranged as to include thorough rat-proofing at no additional expense. In old buildings usually only minor changes of a simple nature are involved to make them rat-proof. The policy of rat-proofing should be consistent; all the buildings of a group must have incorporated in them the essential elements of practical rat-proofing, if the greatest benefits are to be realized from it.

Concrete used in foundations, walls and floors is effective in the exclusion of vermin. It is equally well adapted for this purpose in the case of old buildings.
Rat proofing of new can well be accomplished by following these suggestions:

1. Make continuous concrete foundations, at least two feet in width, below burrowing depth—about 24 inches; for buildings with a basement, the foundation walls—will usually extend considerably deeper than this.

2. Let the concrete extend at least 18 inches above the ground line to discourage the gnawing which is common at this place.

3. When posts or piers are used as supports make these high enough to raise building at least 18 inches off the ground if the building is 30 feet wide or less, increasing the height 6 inches for each additional 10 feet in width. This discourage rats from using the space beneath the floor as a shelter. If the space between the piers is walled up, windows or screened openings as large as practical should be provided to admit light to the enclosure from at least three sides.

4. Use concrete floors wherever possible. These may be laid directly upon well-drained, well-packed soil or upon a base of compacted cinders.

5. All necessary openings should be protected with 1-4 inch, 12-gauge wire screen. Doors should be provided with spring hinges to insure their automatic closing. Leave no doors, windows, or other openings unprotected.

Old buildings present different problems, but their solution is not difficult.
The following points should be emphasized:

1. Locate a new continuous 4-inch concrete foundation wall, alongside the old wall, either outside or inside, as most convenient.

2. Replace old wood floors with new ones of concrete.

3. Pack concrete in the space between joists and studs, at each floor level.

4. Screen all openings as recommended for new construction.

HOME EDUCATION

Your Children's Belongings We hear a great deal about the Farmer who gives his children calves and pigs and takes them away when these animals are grown. For years, people have been writing about this. There are other injustices which no one thinks much about, yet they are just as serious because the same kind of principle is there.

I allude to the cool way with which the mother frequently takes a gift received by one child and gives it to another. A child's name is right! One has given your daughter something, even if it is but a doll, this becomes hers forever, unless she herself chooses to give it away.

I recall a child of six to whom I gave several small presents. As soon as she returned home, her mother took them away to give them to a younger sister!

Very frequently, an older girl is told to give something to the baby. The baby to stop its crying. This is not good for the older child. It makes her look on the baby as an enemy from whom her things must be hidden. It certainly is not good for the baby, because it makes her think that anything will be given her, provided she cries loudly enough for it.

What sense of justice can our children have in later years, when they are bought up in this manner?

Once when I gave a present to a little girl, I seemed that other people had given her things and she had not been allowed to keep them. "Is it for me to keep?"

There was another child to whom I gave a doll. I knew she had been longing for one for years, yet when I gave it to her, instead of being delighted as I had hoped, she would be, she looked at me sadly, while two great tears rolled slowly down her cheeks.

"What is it?" I asked. "Do you not like the doll?" she asked. "But Helen has a doll, and they will give this to her as soon as they see it."

It was only by giving Helen another doll that I could induce the mother to allow the older sister to keep hers.

A child's mind is easily influenced and it is while one is still very young that clear ideas of right and wrong can be most easily implanted. Later on, there will be many things that we shall try to teach, and these first impressions will either help or hinder.

It is of home that a child should be taught his first moral lessons. What mother is fit to teach if she be not fair?

Even a very little child should be taught to respect his brother's and sister's toys. If an older sister lends a toy to a younger one, the latter should be taught to be extra careful of the toy because it "belongs to Big Sister."

Each child should have a place for his own toys, and these should not be lent out indiscriminately by the parent especially while the owner is away at school. I have seen mothers lend toys and things to children when they were not there to defend their property.

I have known the big children to hide their things away "in case Mother might give them to Baby."

It is easy to see that no true love can grow up between mother and child under such conditions. Mothers should teach their children and not show favoritism.
Above all, Mothers should teach the little ones as early as possible the difference between "mine" and "thine."

Old story, Elzhger, colored, was attempting to explain to a friend the meaning of the word "alibi." "An alibi is something" to prove that you wuz in a chicken when you wuzn't and wuz declared.

So many men do something fine, and then become nuisances through conceit.

WOMAN SO ILL WASHED DISHES SITTING DOWN

Mrs. Ashcroft's Remarkable Recovery After Taking Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound

Covington, Ky.—"I was so weak and nervous I could hardly do my household work as I could not stand because of the bearing-down pains in my back and abdomen.
I sat down most of the time and what I could do in that way—as washing dishes, etc. One day a book describing Lydia E. Finkham's medicines was put in my mail-box. I saw how the Vegetable Compound had helped others so I gave it a trial. I had to take about a dozen bottles before I gained my strength but I certainly praise this medicine.
Then I took Lydia E. Finkham's Blood medicine for poor blood. I was cold all the time. I would be so cold I could hardly sit still and in the palms of my hands there would be drops of sweat.
I also used the Sanative Wash and I recommend it also. You may publish this letter and I will gladly answer letters from women and advise my neighbors about these medicines."—Mrs.

Maine people wanted it done C. M. P. Is Doing It

A score of years ago, lots of people talked about the need of developing Maine water powers—MAINE WANTED HER WATER POWERS DEVELOPED.

But only a few did anything about it. These few, with far-seeing judgment and rare courage, actually went at the task.

Develops 74,000 Horsepower Today Central Maine Power Company has, developed, 74,000 horsepower—and stands ready to develop more as needed. Maine people have used this Company as an instrument for great industrial good.

Extends Transmission Lines
Furthermore the people of Maine wanted lines extended to every community that could serve on a profitable basis—and Central Maine Power Company is doing that. 193 communities are being supplied today with lights and power.

The 7 per cent. preferred stock of Central Maine Power is non-assessable, it is preferred as to assets and dividends, it is redeemable at the option of the Company, on 30 days' notice at 120 and accrued dividends. The stock is a legal investment for Maine savings banks. It is exempt from direct taxation in Maine and from the normal Federal income tax. Dividends are payable Jan. 1, April 1, July 1, and Oct. 1. The price is $107.50 a share, the yield 6 1-2 per cent. net.

PRECAUTIONS AGAINST RABIES

A little while ago several dogs died in extreme western part of the state of symptoms indicating rabies. This disease, sometimes known as hydrophobia, is transmitted from animal to animal and from animal to man by infectious mouth secretions—almost always in the country by the bites of rabid dogs. Once the primary symptoms show themselves, a fatal termination is inevitable from a death that is agonizing and heart-rending to behold.

While the mad race of rabid animals has carried this infection from east to west, it has been fortunate, indeed, in escaping it so long. Even in some of the late years, been a matter of serious concern.

In some cases the animal passes quickly from the first stage into the third or the called dumb rabies.

If a person has been bitten by a dog supposed to be rabid it is emphatically a life or a death matter. There is a question here which has been answered as quickly as possible. If the case of a canine rabies, a load of intense anxiety should be thrown overboard. If rabies, the should be begun at once, or at least with a few days. The dog, if he can be safely captured, should be chained for two weeks. After that time, if he has not been thrown overboard, he should be killed. If rabies is developed in the bitten person in a few days, or at least with a few weeks, he should be killed. If he has not been thrown overboard, he should be killed. If rabies is developed in the bitten person in a few days, or at least with a few weeks, he should be killed.

Another strong reason for not killing the dog is that the organisms which are characteristic of rabies, the Negri bodies, very often, when the dog is killed too early a stage, have not developed and it is impossible for the laboratory workers to answer the question: Was it rabies?

A person who has been bitten by a dog in which there is the least reason to believe that the dog is infected with rabies should promptly to his physician a way which will give the greatest assurance of safety; but, even so, the way, absolute safety cannot be guaranteed.

The second step in the treatment for assuring safety of the bitten person is the Pasteur treatment. Rabies in human beings is so agonizing an affliction, and has been held as so absolutely incurable after the first symptoms have developed, that the period of temporary should be lessened the danger very much, but should not be thought to suffice unless the dog is under observation, indicate that the dog was not affected with rabies and the results of the laboratory investigations confirm this opinion.

If the dog at the time he inflicted the bite was known to be rabid, or if he develops symptoms of rabies within his period of quarantine for observation, and in the examination of the brain cord the Negri bodies are found, there will be an absolute need of beginning the Pasteur treatment as early as possible.

If the bite was received in a district in which there had been cases of rabies and was inflicted by a dog of which no definite information can be had as to whether he was rabid, or the dog was prematurely killed, the taking of the treatment would be the much safer course. The degree of safety conferred by the Pasteur treatment is a very close approach to absolute immunity. The recent improvements in it have cut down the death rate from 15 to 30 per cent. to 1 to 3 per thousand of persons bitten. Formerly patients were rushed to Pasteur Institutes, but with the rabies vaccine as it is now supplied by the leading commercial laboratories, the treatment can be given by any physician at his office or at the home of the patient.

The Censor of Rabies may be had from the office of the State Department of Health. It is going to very local health officer and physician.

KEEPING MUM
Last spring a case of small pox was reported from Bangor and two days later a second case. A prompt investigation by the Health Department disclosed the fact that a "lumber operator had been having small pox in his camp for some time had been keeping mum." Without a word of warning they broke camp and forty-odd men scattered themselves over the state and work in learning the location of these health officers, resulted in a smaller number of subsequent cases than was expected. Yet it caused much trouble and expense, particularly in the towns and cities in which the cases of small pox appeared.

The action of this man was very different from that shown by lumber operators generally in the past when small pox has appeared in their camps and his forefear to invade their precincts. Almost invariably they have given prompt notice of even suspicious cases, have put the sick men into small isolation camps and as soon as possible help been sent to them, the men have been vaccinated, have been put under a modified quarantine, but have continued their work and the infected ones have been permitted to resume their work in cases long before they have ceased to be infectious. This policy, seen very quickly to be the best for all hands, has been warmly approved by the Public Health Council of the State Department of Health.

The Public Health Council of the State Department of Health has passed these rules provide that: Whenever, in an organized township, any lumber operator, boss, manager or other person who has charge of any mill, river driving crew, or of a number of persons living or working together, he shall promptly notify the presence of the disease or of his suspicion that it is present. The notification of the State Department of Health shall include the number of persons sick or affected with the disease, the location of the camp, or crew, and information about the best route to travel to reach the case or cases in question.

It shall also be the duty of any person in charge of any household, camp or crew to do promptly everything possible to prevent the further spread of the disease or of the infection thereof.

BOLSTER'S MILLS
Mrs. Sarah Chase Weston
December eighteenth at the home of her daughter in Berlin, N. H., Sarah Weston, widow of the late James Wendall Weston, passed away from this life to the one beyond. The deceased was born in Portland, June second, eight hundred forty-seven, the youngest child of Daniel and Betsy (Fernald) Weston. She was married to James Wendall Weston on April third, eighteen hundred sixty-seven at the home of her father, Mr. Weston of Harrison, Maine, and they went there until his death, July twenty-fifth, she having been his housewife for thirty years. A severe illness caused almost continuous pain during two weeks in August. This affliction returned again Thanksgiving morning. Regardless of this she made the trip from her old home to Berlin, December second, where she seemingly gained each day, but her strength returned gradually. Wednesday morning, December seventh she had a relapse, a malady from which she had suffered infrequent attacks during the past few years. The intense pain and the end came, while peacefully sleeping at half past one Thursday afternoon, December eighteenth.

Her death marks the passing of the last link in the family of the community ever kind in ministering to her neighbors in sickness or sorrow. In her earlier days she was a ready helper in the church of Maple Ridge and Bolster's Mills, and when the latter was rebuilt, two years ago, she gave a window in memory of the W. C. T. U., an organization which she had interested in the last.

A prayer service by Rev. E. W. Moore was held Saturday afternoon, December twentieth at her daughter's home in Berlin and funeral services were at her son's home in Bolster's Mills, Sunday afternoon, December twenty-first. Rev. W. C. Cole of Gorham, Maine, officiating. The floral tributes from the church, W. C. T. U. and new acquaintances of Berlin added their breath of friendship to the love offerings of relatives and old friends.

An older sister, Harriet Chase Burnham, of Gloucester, Mass., and three children, Albert W., of Bolster's Mills, Lester S. of Mechanic Falls and Mrs. Mark W. H. Emery and family have moved from the rent over Chester Buck's in Cole on the road to Greenwood.

Last Saturday Mrs. Barden accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Jennie Currier, took the babies to Portland in baby diseases and Tuesday they went justment of the food quantities seems to be the main trouble with the LeBay babies. They have engaged a nurse for them.

The next meeting of the West Paris Grange will be an all day one with an installation of officers in the forenoon and Mary Patch is visiting her uncle, Harriet Millett, at Millettville, Norway, during her vacation.

There were no services at the Universalist church last Sunday. They are having a new furnace installed. The Little Christmas play given at the evening before Xmas was very nice and interesting. They have been asked to repeat it.

Ruth Cole is home for two weeks from her work in Greenleaf's Lunch room at Norway. Clifford Cole of Gorham visited Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday, then Wendall went home with him for a few days visit.

Mrs. Mabel Bacon is working for Mrs. Will Whitman whose mother, Mrs. Chesley, is very poorly.

TWIN TOWN NATURE CLUB

The January meeting of the Twin Town Nature Club was held in the Methodist Community House, Monday evening, Jan. 1, 1925. The meeting was opened by Rev. C. A. Park, who was welcomed with a warm hand after his severe illness. Jan being the friendly month, the roll call by Flora Murch, secretary, was aided by appropriate quotations and a most prepared answer to the question, "What is the meaning of the word 'Nature'?"

Miss Mercy Millette read in a pleasing manner, "Friendship Time," Alice Booth and Philip Stone gave talks on feeding stations, urging a put food within reach of the birds in the snowy months. After an interesting song by Emory Wentzel in costume, accompanied by Mrs. O. B. Tracy, an informal talk on "Indians and Customs," by Miss Tracy, followed.

The charming little Community House and cheerful with its open fire, with Indian blankets and made an ideal setting for an interesting lecture and the Indian through Mr. Pendexter's eyes was different people who "not only loved nature."

Copies of our new State song, given the members and with Mr. Curtis as the piano "Maine" filled the hall. A social hour followed, refreshments and the following: goldfinch, red breasted nuthatch, breasted nuthatch, chickadee, chickadee, song sparrow, kingfisher, flock of seven robins the last named being the subject of the talk. The February meeting will be at Paris.
